Rinky IN 'S NO JOKE!

The Circle-O Ranch was covered with snow and Rinky wanted to try out his skis, but he didn't want anyone to see him because he could hardly stand up on them. When no one was looking, Rinky took his skis and rode up to Crag Mountain on Whitey, his pony.

He left Whitey at the bottom of the mountain and climbed up the snowy slopes. Rinky stopped by a gentle incline and put on his skis. He shivered as he looked down another steep, tree-dotted hill which was behind him.

Just as Rinky was about to start down the little hill, he heard someone exclaim, "Wait a minute, Rinky, and I'll ski down the slope with you!"

Rinky turned and saw Thelma Hawk, a little neighbor who lived on a nearby ranch. She glided swiftly and gracefully over the snow and stopped in front of him. "I didn't know you could ski, Rinky!" she said.

Rinky was going to say, "I can't," but he didn't. Instead he grinned, "Why there's nothing to it! Let's ski down this hill and I'll show you!"

"Oh, not THAT little hill, Rinky! Let's go down the steep hill and ski in and out of the trees! Come on, I'll race you!" challenged Thelma.

"You will?" shivered Rinky as he looked down the dangerous slope.

"I know you can beat me, Rinky, but it'll be such fun!" said Thelma. "Are you cold? You're shivering," she continued.

"I'm fine. You start down the hill and wait for me at the bottom. I left Whitey down there. I have to fix my ski!" Rinky mumbled.

SWISH! Thelma slipped over the glistening snow with the ease of an expert.

Just then Rinky heard a loud rumbling noise behind him. "LOOK OUT, RINKY!" Thelma yelled.

Rinky turned and saw tons of snow crashing down the mountain directly at him. "YIKE!" shouted Rinky and at the same instant he lost his balance and went zooming down the steep slope on one ski. In and out of the trees he went, faster and faster, with the roaring snow behind him.

"HELP! SAVE ME, RINKY!" shouted Thelma who was too frightened to move.

ZOOOOOMM! Rinky rocketed down the mountainside on one ski! The avalanche rumbled louder and louder. Rinky looked like a tiny windmill as he waved his arms wildly to keep his balance. He headed straight for Thelma and, as he flashed by her, one of his outstretched arms hooked around her and they went skiing down the mountain together.

ZIP! They sailed through the air and landed . . . KERPLUNK . . . right in Whitey's saddle! The startled pony raced off like a shot. WHAM! CRASH! The avalanche smashed into the very spot where the pony had been standing only a split-second before!

Minutes later, Thelma said excitedly, "Oh, Rinky, you're wonderful! You saved my life! You're the greatest skier in the whole wide world! I knew you were a good skier but I've NEVER seen anyone quite as good as you! Why you came all the way down the mountain, saved me, and landed right on Whitey! If I hadn't seen it with my own eyes, I would never have believed it!"

"SKIING is believing!" grinned Rinky. "Anyway, I wasn't even trying!" said the little cowboy, truthfully. Then, for the first time in five minutes, Rinky OPENED his eyes!
